SUBJECT: House Bill 1628, Relating to Compassionate Release
Hearing: Wednesday, February 4, 2026; 9:00 a.m.
State Capitol, Room 411

Chair Belatti, Vice Chair Iwamoto, and Members of the Committee:

The Hawai'i Correctional System Oversight Commission (HCSOC) submits testimony in strong support of House Bill 1628, relating to compassionate release, which establishes a protocol for compassionate release for certain ill or seriously debilitated incarcerated persons.

Our team has personally witnessed the suffering of elderly, seriously ill, and dying individuals in Hawai'i's correctional facilities. Many of these individuals no longer pose a threat to public safety, yet remain incarcerated under conditions that are medically complex, emotionally painful, and often inhumane. Compassionate release would allow terminally ill, elderly, or incapacitated people to spend their final months with family, preserving dignity at the end of life while still ensuring careful review standards, eligibility requirements, and public safety.

The Commission has collectively worked on this legislation in collaboration with the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, the Hawai'i Paroling Authority, and community partners. This bill reflects a shared commitment to public safety, human dignity, fiscal responsibility, and the values that define Hawai'i.

From a fiscal and operational standpoint, Hawai'i spends significant public resources incarcerating elderly and medically frail individuals, often incurring extraordinarily high medical expenses without corresponding public benefit. Recently, the House Committee on Public Safety hosted an informational briefing to inform and educate the committee about best practices for medical release programs adopted by correctional systems throughout the United States. During this briefing, it was shared that:

- The average annual cost of incarceration exceeds $100,000 per person

- Some critically ill incarcerated individuals have required medical expenses exceeding $900,000 in a single year
- Another individual’s care surpassed $2 million in just one quarter, including emergency medical evacuation and hospitalization
- In one case, a single prescription consumed over 90% of the department’s annual medication budget, diverting care from others in custody

The State of Hawai‘i must pay out-of-pocket for all incarcerated individuals’ medical costs, including hospital care, specialty treatment, high-cost medications, medical escorts, and staff overtime for off-site appointments. By contrast, when eligible individuals are released into the community, they can qualify for Medicare or Medicaid, shifting significant healthcare costs away from Hawai‘i taxpayers.

Additionally, compassionate release can help correctional staff. The Commission’s 2025 Correctional Staff Survey Report, based on responses from over 800 correctional employees, found that Hawai‘i’s correctional staffing crisis has reached a critical and unsustainable level. Key findings include:

- Mandatory overtime, chronic vacancies, and unsustainable workloads
- Approximately 60% of staff report serious health impacts due to job stress
- High levels of PTSD, depression, burnout, and emotional exhaustion
- Nearly 30% vacancy rates in some facilities, forcing staff to cover essential posts through excessive overtime

Staff also reported that caring for critically ill and dying incarcerated individuals places a heavy emotional, logistical, and clinical burden on an already strained workforce. Compassionate release would ease pressure on correctional medical staff, allowing them to redirect time, attention, and resources toward the broader incarcerated population, improve safety, and reduce burnout.

Lastly, this legislation is deeply aligned with Hawai‘i’s values of aloha, kuleana, restorative justice, and community healing. It recognizes the disproportionate impact incarceration has on Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander communities, and offers a pathway grounded in compassion, accountability, and fairness. For all these reasons, the Commission respectfully asks you to pass this bill.
